Perniciaro sentenced to 60 days at Air Base

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
Former Hancock County supervisor Sam Perniciaro Sr. was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail and pay a $5,000 fine and make restitution for charges stemming from Operation Pretense.

U.S. District Judge Tom S. Lee sentenced Perniciaro on Friday in Jackson, ordering him to begin serving his jail term February 14.

Judge Lee originally sentenced Perniciaro to three years but suspended all of it except 60 days.

Perniciaro requested, and assistant U.S. attorney James

Tucker recommended, that the sentence be served at Eglin Air Force Base, Fort Walton Beach, Fla.

Lee sentenced Perniciaro to five years probation to begin immediately upon completing the jail term. Perniciaro cannot seek or hold public office during the five-year period of his probation. Lee also ordered Perniciaro to pay a $5,000 fine and $946.12 in restitution to Hancock County, both within 10 days.

Saturday afternoon Perniciaro said, "I feel so much better that the sentencing is all over with and now I am ready to get the sentence behind me."

"I want to say this too, assistant U.S. attorneys George Phillips, James Tucker and Peter Barrett were very good to me. They assisted me in getting the light sentence and probation. They were helping in trying to get Judge Lee to give me only probation. I probably would have gotten more time without their help," Perniciaro added.

"I feel the whole thing (Operation Pretense) was a setup and I was caught," Perniciaro said.

The former supervisor had pled guilty in November 1987 to one count of mail fraud and one count of extortion, admitting that he took $600 in kick-backs and $276 worth of tires while serving as a county supervisor.

In exchange, the U.S. attorney's office dropped seven other charges against him.

Perniciaro was near the end of his third term as supervisor when he was indicted in July, 1987 on charges stemming from Operation Pretense, a four-year federal undercover investigation of county purchasing practices that has resulted in charges against 56 Mississippi county supervisors.

He was charged with mail fraud, bribery, extortion and conspiracy to defeat the county unit system and had originally pled not guilty after being indicted in July 1987.

Even under indictment, Perniciaro was a unanimous winner in his fourth bid as supervisor and resigned from office in January, 1988.

The judge said his sentence was influenced by Perniciaro's cooperation with the government and Tucker's recommendation that any jail time be for the shortest possible period.

Former supervisor Roger Dale Ladner was sentenced earlier last week to a year and a day in jail and fined $2,000 in addition to having to pay the county $1,598.25 in restitution. Former supervisors James Travira and Bert Courge are awaiting sentencing on Operation Pretense charges.

Perniciaro stated, "I really want to thank the people of this county for their continued support during this ordeal. They have been very good to me and my family and I will always remember their kindnesses."

Jury quickly decides Joseph did not intend to kill wife

BY D.C. HARVILL

The courtroom in Hancock County Friday night was filled with sobs of relief and cries of "Thank God, our prayers have been answered" as family and friends of Melbourne Joseph Jr. surrounded him after a jury determined he was "not guilty" of murdering his wife, Diana Joseph.

The jury, which had been sequestered during the five-day trial, was in deliberation for only an hour before arriving at the verdict.

"Thank God. All I can tell you is justice has prevailed. It's been a nightmare, a double tragedy for over a year," said an extremely emotional Joseph.

Joseph was being tried for murder, stemming from a December 22, 1987 collision, at the intersection of DeMontluzin and Second Streets, in which a vehicle driven by Joseph rammed a car driven by Mrs. Joseph, causing it to strike a utility pole.

While undergoing emergency surgery later that day at Hancock Medical Center, Mrs. Joseph died from massive internal bleeding due to injuries from the collision.

Throughout the week-long trial, Joseph's mother sat in the audience sobbing and wiping tears from her eyes. Other members of his family, including a nephew in Marine uniform, were present for most of the trial.

Before hearing attorney's final arguments, Judge Costa Vlahos instructed the jury as to what issues they should be concerned with in arriving at a decision.

"The state has to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Joseph had designed to kill Diana Joseph, that he had designed to collide with her car and for that collision to result in her death. If the state fails to prove beyond a reasonable doubt any one of those issues, then you the jury should find Mel Joseph not guilty," Vlahos told the jury.

Friday morning, testimony by paid defense witness Ray Herd, director of the North Louisiana Crime Lab, refuted testimony given previously by Mississippi Highway Patrolman David Kenny who had been called as an expert in accident reconstruction.

Kenny had stated that from evidence at the scene of the collision, damage to the two automobiles and the distance glass from Mrs. Joseph's car traveled after hitting the pole, he determined her car had been going 49 miles per hour when it struck the pole.

He also had stated that the speed of her car would have increased when hit from behind by Mel Joseph's car.

Herd said, due to a lack of skidmarks on the street at the crash scene and since it is unknown whether or not her car was airborne when it struck the pole, and at what angle the pieces of glass left the car, it is impossible to accurately determine the speed of the cars.

"The state has to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Joseph had designed to kill Diana Joseph, that he had designed to collide with her car and for that collision to result in her death. If the state fails to prove beyond a reasonable doubt any one of those issues, then you the jury should find Mel Joseph not guilty." — Judge Vlahos.

"There is not anything there that can be plugged into a formula to get a good idea of speed," Herd said.

Under questioning by defense attorney Jim Rose, Herd said he had personal experience with 400 to 500 accidents in which vehicles had struck poles and that he had an opinion as to the speed of the Josephs' cars based on that experience.

"There was mostly sheetmetal damage. That indicates that it was a low speed collision, 40 miles per hour or less. The small car was traveling approximately 10 miles per hour and the large car 35 possibly 40 mph."

"There was very little damage to the front of the big car (Mel Joseph's Olds Toronado). A high speed collision pushes the engine back and starts to buckle the car. That didn't happen," Herd said.

"Both left the site of collision (point of impact between the two vehicles) at 25 to 30 mph. That doesn't sound like enough to cause the damage that was done but, that pole is about eight inches in diameter and all that force is concentrated in that small area."

"The state has to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Joseph had designed to kill Diana Joseph, that he had designed to collide with her car and for that collision to result in her death. If the state fails to prove beyond a reasonable doubt any one of those issues, then you the jury should find Mel Joseph not guilty." — Judge Vlahos.

That type collision tends to cause injury to the person on the side of impact," Herd explained.

Mrs. Joseph's car made impact with the pole just behind the driver's door.

In response to testimony by two defense witnesses, one who claimed to be a weight lifter,

Supervisors appoint Cuevas as new head of county maintenance

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has named Samuel A. Cuevas as new county maintenance superintendent.

Cuevas succeeds Bill Johnson, who resigned several weeks ago to take a job in the private sector. The new superintendent will be only the second in Hancock County because the position was created along with the switch to the unit system in 1987.

The board selected Cuevas from a field of eight applicants selected from the 24 who responded to advertisements of the job. His salary was set at $27,000 annually.

Cuevas, a Bay St. Louis native who graduated from Bay High in 1963, starts his duties Feb. 1. He has a background in administration and maintenance and will receive a bachelor of science degree in business administration from William Carey College in May.

His most recent job has been with the National Guard in Gulfport, where he had served as material control NCO since 1980. He had worked with the guard for 10 years before taking that position.

Cuevas was previously a self-employed construction contractor and a heavy equipment operator.

"I'm happy to have this job," the new maintenance superintendent said. "It's going to be quite a challenge, but it's part of what I see as a lot of progress."

"I see a board of supervisors that has embraced the county unit system and is determined to make it work, and I can help them make it work."

Cuevas is a member of American Legion Post 139 and Bay St. Louis Little League, when he has served as a manager and is now player agent. He is also a member of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church.

He is married to Mike Cuevas and they have two children, Katie Cuevas, 17, and Joe Cuevas, 15, both of whom attend Bay Senior High School.

Special Bay election scheduled for Tuesday

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Throughout the year, citizens will be asked to vote on a number of important issues. The first of these is a special election scheduled for Tuesday, February 14, 1989. This election is being held to elect a new member to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors. The incumbent, Bill Johnson, has resigned his position to take a job in the private sector. The board of supervisors has decided to hold a special election to fill the vacancy. The election will be held at the same time as the regular election for the Board of Supervisors, which is scheduled for Tuesday, February 14, 1989. Parents invited to hear about US-Soviet exchange program

For more than 30 years, "People to People Student Ambassador Programs" have been facilitating student exchange programs throughout the world.

Through a series of meetings in the past year Soviet and U.S. officials, a committee has planned to make the People to People Friendship Caravan the most meaningful and most visible place between two countries.

Representatives from the program will be on hand Tuesday night, January 17, at the Bay Senior High Library. Parents of high school age students interested in the exchange program are invited to attend the event at 7 p.m.

Bay St. Louis is one of only three cities in Mississippi to be chosen to participate. Hattiesburg and Meridian are also included.

Morris announces for re-election

Judge J. S. (Johnny) Morris, 8th Chancery Court District, serving Harrison, Hancock and Stone counties, announces his bid for re-election to the Place 3 position he has held since 1972.

Now senior chancellor, Judge Morris is a lifelong resident of the Mississippi Coast, prominent in civic work in the Coast community as well as the judiciary system. He served as Municipal Court judge for the City of Gulfport and previously as Justice Court judge.

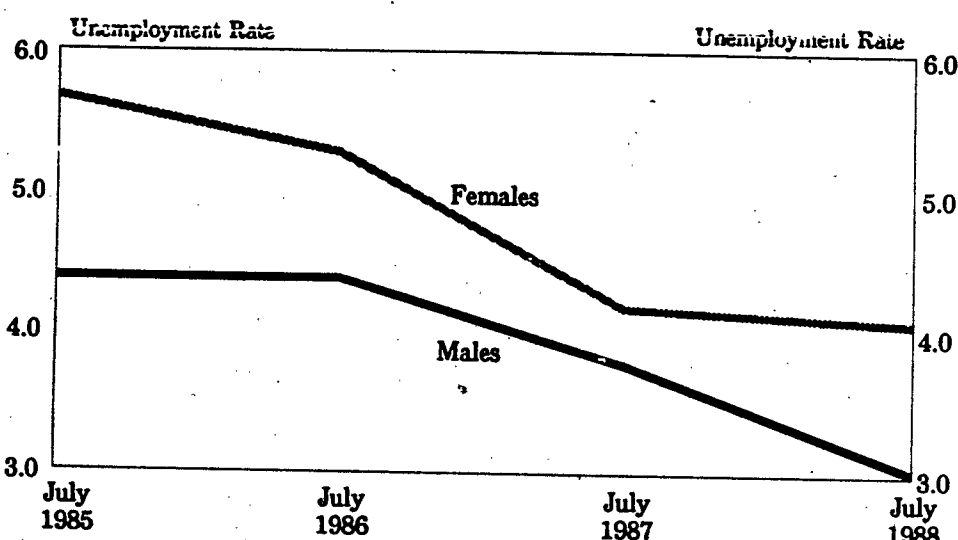

Referring to his work, Morris said, "I have been fortunate enough to be able to open all Chancery Court terms that have been assigned to me during the approximate 16 years that I have served on this Chancery Bench and my judicial decisions have been consistently upheld by the Mississippi Supreme Court."

"Chancery Court is available to try approximately 145 different types of cases and a Chancery Judge should and must be knowledgeable and experienced in trial procedure, trial methods and the law affecting these matters. The decisions that I have made through the years on the bench have been after a finding of the facts from testimony and evidence in the case before me and after an impartial application of the law as defined by our statutes and interpreted by our

A veteran of World War II, Morris enlisted in the Navy, was attached to the anti-submarine unit of the Naval Air Patrol Squadron, and during his service lost a limb following an injury and was honorably discharged.

Before becoming chancellor 16 years ago, Judge Morris was named Master in Chancery and served for a period of two years, holds now or has held membership in the following law associations: County, Mississippi and American Bar Associations, Mississippi Trial Lawyers' Association, American Judicial Society and the Mississippi Law Enforcement Association.

His civic work and community service has extended to numerous clubs and associations of which he is either now or has been a member; they include Disabled American Veterans (life member); Gulfport Benevolent and Protective Order of the Elks; Veterans of Foreign Wars (life member), American Legion; Loyal Order of the Moose (life member); 32nd Degree Mason and a Shriner; past president of the Gulfport Young Men's Business Club; past commander of the Amvets; and flotilla commander and inspector-examiner of the Gulfport Coast Guard Auxiliary. He is a member of First Baptist Church of Gulfport.

After graduating from Mis-issippi State University, he completed his studies for admission to the bar and became a practicing attorney in 1964.

Morris has been married to the former June Gentry for 35 years.

Judge Morris says, "Please remember that this election fills one of the most important judicial posts, so please set aside a few minutes to cast your vote on April 4."

By Dena Bisnette

How in the world are women supposed to function coherently in life when the rules keep changing?

I thought about this matter the last time my husband was away and I wonder when women will ever stop trying to be men.

That's right, I said "men," not "equal to men."

While he was gone, I found myself trying to be "the man of the house," handling all our business. That left nobody to be the woman.

Now, as I understand it, women have different roles in different cultures but are consistently in charge of domestic chores like housecleaning, cooking and shopping; childcare; and social functions such as letter-writing.

The man's traditional role has always been breadwinner. Where children are concerned, he's not a care-giver as much as a disciplinarian and somebody to set the rules. He handles vehicle maintenance, finances and the heavier yardwork while the wife plants roses.

That kind of life might have been fine for men but made women dependent, with no income of their own and, unless they were involved in church or civic work, no identity outside the home.

Even single, self-sufficient women were badgered to change their ways and knew they could only get so far in the job market unless they had extraordinary talents.

The dual-income family sure blew those ideas right out of the water.

We got working women in the 40s when the men went to war. We got the "happily married woman with children" on our television sets in the 50s but in the 60s their daughters wore unisex fashions and put their

IRS offers assistance

The office, located at One Government Plaza Building, Room 300, 13th Street and 30th Avenue, will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. Monday through Friday, according to Tully Miller, IRS district director.

"Taxpayer assistants will be available to answer questions about IRS notices, explain tax laws, and help prepare federal tax returns through self-help methods," said Miller. The IRS encourages taxpayers to prepare their returns early this year to make taxes less taxing.

feet in the doors of traditional male jobs. In the 70s, women fought for sisterhood and equality with men.

I'm a woman of the 80s, and since the history book on this decade hasn't been written yet I only know what I see.

I see "Superwoman Syndrome" victims juggling careers, kids, committees and maybe husbands, if they aren't divorced yet. Some are doing quite well, but others are into an identity crisis stage, trying to keep up with their sisters but unable, in their own minds, to make the full break with traditions backed up by centuries of culture.

I also see what, if we stick to traditional stereotypes, I can call the "feminization" of men, with males getting more in touch with their emotions, splitting household chores and helping with children.

Then I see the majority of women, who are trying to become the men they used to be looking for. Like men, they concentrate more on careers and marry later. When I visit their houses during the week, I see domestic chores delayed for evenings and weekends. I also see the kids in day care centers or after-school activities or growing up as latchkey kids.

Let's be men, ladies. Let's get caught up in the workplace rat race and carry all these extra responsibilities. Let's spend our free time at the health spa trying to maintain those bodies so we can beat the guys at tennis. Is that what we want?

Joe said something, once about me not being dependent enough, telling me that I could make an insecure man feel like I didn't need him. Thank heavens Joe isn't one of them, but listen, sisters, there are an awful lot of insecure men out there and maybe you'd ought to think about it if you still buy the old Southern bit about being an old maid.

The way I see it, being self-sufficient sure fits the male stereotype. Will men get bored with us being too much like them, or will they merely intensify the competition and set unrealistically high goals for us to reach in our careers and personal lives?

It worries me when I listen to women talk. Once upon a time, we were the ones who softened men's hard edges. Now we are, as a group, becoming as hard-edged as they are.

I'm all for equal rights, job opportunities and pay for women. Like anyone else, I have had to put up with working with men who felt they were entitled to their jobs but I should be home chained to some guy's kitchen stove. I will not tolerate any form of discrimination I can change by legal means and I will try to change what I call "discrimination by attitude."

Thank God I met somebody willing to put up with me and the side of me that fits the traditionally male set of talents, like my non-domestic housekeeping habits, but will help me temper my attitudes and try to reach the more sympathetic side that traditionalists feel is inborn to the female nature.

I don't want to see women lose that. I believe men have it too; I have already seen men robbed of it by years of culture, and I don't think they like what they see any better than I do.

USM sponsors High School Computer Contest

High school students from a four-state area will have a chance to exhibit their computer programming skills during the University of Southern Mississippi's fourth annual High School Student Computer Programming Contest Saturday, Feb. 11.

The 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. contest—modeled after the national scholastic programming contest for college and university teams and sponsored by USM's Department of Computer Science—is designed for teams composed of four or fewer students. Pending availability of space, a school may send more than one team.

The contest will be conducted using microcomputers with Pascal and BASIC languages. A team may choose to provide its own microcomputer and software, or use a Tandy 1000 and software provided by the university.

ware, or use a Tandy 1000 and software provided by the university.

The overall winning team members will receive scholarships and a plaque for their school. Other prizes and plaques will be awarded to teams that place in the USM contest. All participants will receive contest t-shirts.

Past championship winners include Long Beach High School in 1986 and 1988, coached by Robert Ladner; and 1987 champion Hattiesburg High School, coached by Brenda Fayard.

For contest regulations and entry blanks, contact USM's Department of Computer Science at Southern Station Box 5106, Hattiesburg, Miss., 39406-5106, or call 1-266-4949.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The residents of Bay St. Louis do not want to forget to vote on Tuesday in the special election for two council seats.

The voters of District One will be voting on a district councilman and a councilman at large while the electors of the other districts will be selecting only a councilman at large.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the four voting precincts.

There have been changes in two of the polling places for this election.

Bay St. Louis voters of District One vote at Bay Senior High School; District Two at the City-County Library; District Three at the Bay St. Louis Fire Station and District Four at Christ Episcopal.

Be sure to vote on Tuesday.

This is just a reminder about the Memorial Services this afternoon for Mississippi Supreme Court Justice J. Ruble Griffin scheduled for 3 p.m. at the First Baptist Church, Bay St. Louis.

Some good news was received this past week for many residents of the lower part of Hancock County from Pearl River Community College.

Dr. Ted Alexander, president of the community college, announced to Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board members on Monday that classes will be offered at Bay Senior High beginning in March.

Alexander indicated the selection of Bay High was because of a significant number of residents of Hancock County attending the main campus at Poplarville.

This will be a good opportunity for residents to take college courses without having to travel too far.

We understand registration will be on March 6 and the new program is expected to start with six subjects.

There will have to be ten paid students per class for the subject to be offered.

We will be giving you more information on the classes next month.

State govt. reorganization supported by Waveland resident

To the Editor:

In order to create an Executive branch of government that can more fully respond to the needs of the citizens of Mississippi, the process of reorganization should begin with the current legislative session.

Consolidating agencies with similar and complementary programs should result in enhanced services and dollar savings. Reorganization should create an Executive branch accountable to our citizens as well as providing for Senate confirmation of those individuals selected to run state agencies.

Sincerely yours,
Nancy Gex

Former N.O. police officer condemns use of fake I.D.s

To the Editor,

Nearly 10 years ago, as a New Orleans police officer, I saw a car with only its parking lights on speeding down a cul-de-sac on a dark rainy night. Rather than pursue the car, I chose to wait for it to come back up the street.

I waited too long to act. The young 17-year-old girls inside the front seat didn't see the dead end blockade. There was a terrible impact; the passenger was thrown so far from the car that the K-9 dogs had to find the torn body pieces. The girl who drove the car was high'y intoxicated; the passenger had no alcohol in her blood stream; but they were both equally dead from drinking and driving.

I still spend some nights running through tall weeds looking for a young blond-haired girl thrown through the front windshield of that car.

Last week one of the wonderful young people who works for me told me that some kids had made fake Drivers Licenses using copies from my shop.

My new employee realized that there was something odd about the copy enlargement two young local girls were asking to be made...so she showed me...words like "Driver License, Social Security Numbers, Dates of Birth" and names.

Young women and men in this community, I will not stand in the choir loft of Our Lady of the Gulf and sing in a Requiem Mass for you—not if I can help it—not because I failed to act. I turned the information over to Sgt. Chuck James of the Bay St. Louis Police Department.

God bless the parents and teachers who deal with children of today. You have a job to do.

Sincerely,
Allyson L. Keller, Owner

Tort reform, reorganization top Senate, House action

A campaign to make lawsuits less costly in Mississippi got a boost Thursday when the Mississippi Senate voted to reduce time limit for filing civil lawsuits from six to two years. Sen. Gene Taylor voted with the majority in a 40-9 tally.

The Senate passed a similar bill last year, but it died in a House Senate conference committee. It's part of a package of tort reform bills being advocated by business forces as a way to improve the state's business climate reducing insurance liability costs. The tort reform vote was among the few significant floor actions during the first week of the three month long 1989 session.

This week, (Jan. 9-13) however, a major battle seems destined to hit the floor of the Senate as lawmakers take up Gov. Ray Mabus' reorganization plan. The 300 page package of bills proposes to eliminate many state agencies, consolidating their functions into 10 major departments.

Besides projected savings of $8.7 million, reorganization is seen by most observers as greatly strengthening the authority of the governor's office.

Opponents of Mabus' plan tried in a Senate committee to exempt certain agencies from the reorganization knife, while the governor's supporters want to see the entire package of bills voted on as a unit. Sen. Jack Gordon, Appropriations Committee chairman, for example, wanted to pull the state Tax Commission out of the reorganization pie. Others have said they would like the Library Commission and the Department of Archives and History left alone.

But reorganization support-ter Sen. Hob Bryan likened Mississippi's many state agencies to a car where all the parts work individually, but none of them work together. Reorganization supporters successfully prevented any agencies from slipping out from under the reorganization umbrella in the first round.

A House committee will take up the same reorganization plan this week. Committee Chairman Rep. Tommy Walman of McComb says he expects that a strong version of the bill will make it to the House floor for consideration by all the members.

Though reorganization is likely to grab the early spotlight, lawmakers got some good news in other areas. Unless there is a recession or major slowdown in the nation's economy, the state should have little problem finding enough money to pay for its $1.9 billion general fund budget.

Though 1989 is not expected to be as strong economically as 1987 or 1988, it will be a fairly good year for business and for tax collections, state economist Ed Ranck told a joint session of the legislature. However, if the new Bush administration decides to cut federal entitlement programs such as food stamps, Mississippi will be in deep trouble, legislative leaders warn.

The governor is also requesting $101 million to repair or renovate state buildings and equipment and construct or buy new buildings and equipment. The capital improvement plan, the first ever proposed in the state, covers five years. It would require legislators to go along with the new idea of paying for major capital improvements through long term bonds rather than through short term payments.

Additionally, a $54 million federal-state plan to increase retirement benefits for state workers was put on hold until the state can find the $13 million required for its share of the program.

Constitutional reform, a hot issue last year, was again introduced this year, but even its supporters say they expect it to take a back seat to the fight over reorganization in 1989.

Senate Bill 2132. The Senate passed 40-9 a bill to reduce Mississippi's statute of limitations in civil cases from six to two years, with Sens. Welch and Musgrove pairing. A pair is a parliamentary maneuver that allows a lawmaker to go on record supporting or opposing a bill but his vote does not count. Musgrove was for the bill and Welch against. Taylor, yes; Tate, yes.

Amendment to Senate Bill 2132. Passed 27-22, amended the committee report, reducing the statute of limitations in civil cases from three to two years. Taylor, yes; Tate, yes.

Senate Bill 2134. Passed 29-21. This bill raised the interest charged on all court judgments from eight percent to 10 percent, and also stipulates that judgments issued against a contract bear interest at the same rate as the contract. Taylor, yes; Tate, no.

HOUSEKEEPING

From the Mississippi House of Representatives

The State Tax Commission and State Personnel Board would remain intact but several other significant changes would be made in state government under a modified reorganization bill recommended by a select committee in the House of Representatives.

The special committee completed work last week on the massive proposal, sending it to the full House for consideration. It was not expected to be called up for floor action before the later part of the current week, giving legislators a chance to study the measure and prepare any amendments they may want to offer.

A separate reorganization bill triggered prolonged debate in the State Senate during the past week before finally being approved.

The House bill is a modified version of the 227-page proposal submitted by the Governor's Office, but did not include a hotly contested plan to close the charity hospitals at Laurel, Meridian and Vicksburg. This was expected to be presented later in another bill.

The Governor's proposals have drawn a mixed reaction in the House. Certain recommendations appear to have the support of many lawmakers, but there has been concern that other proposals may be unwise or ill-advised for various reasons.

Legislators generally are in favor of reorganization when it will mean improved efficiency and save taxpayers' dollars. In fact, several bills have been approved by lawmakers in recent years providing for reorganization of various agencies and departments including the Department of Education, Department of Natural Resources, Corrections Department, and Department of Economic Development.

The latest proposals are strongly backed by some lawmakers and opposed by others.

In other major action last week, the House Insurance Committee approved a bill to strengthen the state's Financial Responsibility laws to try to keep uninsured motorists off the highways. The bill requires proof of financial responsibility of payment of a $300 fee prior to getting a car tag, and officers would check for financial responsibility when motorists are stopped for moving violations or at road blocks. The bill was awaiting House action as the current week began.

A comprehensive waste minimization program was recommended by the legislative Environmental Protection Council. Key proposals include stricter control of medical wastes and establishment of a Waste Management Trust Fund, with advance disposal fees to be collected on tires, lead-acid batteries, newsprint and beverage containers.

The House gave overwhelming approval to a bill to provide a 5 percent increase in retirement benefits to thousands of public officials throughout Mississippi, both at the state and local level. The bill also calls for a change in the formula for computing future benefits, a small increase in the contribution rate by employers and employees to the public employees retirement fund, a supplemental retirement allowance for legislators and an optional basis, and a provision allowing public employees to retire at 55 without penalty if they have at least 25 years of service. The bill still faces Senate action.

A joint session was held during the week for an address by former Gov. William Winter and Dr. Jesse L. White Jr., a native Mississippian now serving as director of the Southern Growth Policies Board. The chief topic was a report by the Commission on the Future of the South, listing 10 regional objectives which Winter said are becoming "a kind of long-range game plan for the South."

Several legislators took part in a workshop on the problem of teenage pregnancy; health officials met with the House Penitentiary Committee to discuss the possibility of AIDS testing of state inmates; and the House Agriculture Committee received a briefing on the feasibility of a new farmers' market in northeast Mississippi.

Checks and balances system still the best

Should Mississippi do a better job of delivering services? Should those who spend tax dollars be accountable to the public they serve? Should we save tax dollars?

The answer, of course, is "yes." And, that is why I have fought for a plan to reduce the size of government, and to make it work better.

Unfortunately, this plan is being fought at every turn. Some people are simply afraid of change. It's like the old saying, "Everybody wants progress, but nobody wants to change." Others with vested interests are determined to see things continue as they are.

Those in state government who are against this change are simply out of touch with most of the people of Mississippi. As recently as this month, a statewide poll showed that 65 percent of Mississippians support a significant reorganization of state government.

That is no accident. In 1987, I believe you—the voters—asked for change. It is difficult to look around and not wonder why Mississippi has not shared in some of the prosperity that most of the nation has.

You can look at it another way. If you are satisfied with the way state government works, then there is no need to reduce its size or reorganize it.

But if you think it could work a whole lot better, it is important to you, your pocketbook and your future that some basic changes be made.

Believe it or not, the more than 100 state agencies, boards and commissions that make up the executive branch of state government are run by over 700 appointed persons. They are unknown to voters and unaccountable to them.

Is that what you expect out of your state government? Or instead, do you expect that when you elect someone, that person should have the chance to carry out the policies he campaigned on?

The proposal I put forth puts similar groups similar programs under one roof. These state departments would be managed and directed by someone who can be held accountable for his or her decisions because the governor would be allowed to appoint the director—with the advise and consent of the Senate.

These kind of checks and balances are as old as democracy itself. It just makes plain good sense.

On top of all that, it saves money. Even so, opponents continue to chip away at the proposal. They come up with a million reasons why we should not change, and very few reasons why we should.

I believe we have nothing to lose. I believe we can do a better job. Now is the time to act.

America the Beautiful.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Friendship Oak DAR

Mrs. Robert C. Willems, vice regent of Friendship Oak Chapter, National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, presided over the regular annual meeting on Jan. 11 at Chappy's Restaurant in Long Beach.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Hazel Erhard and Mrs. James R. Thomas, who provided a beautiful spring flower centerpiece. In addition, each member was given a 'Presidential Book Marker' of red cloth which lists in gold the name of each president of the United States from George Washington to Ronald Reagan and the year of his inauguration.

Mrs. William Gemmel, treasurer, announced that she would take subscriptions for the DAR magazine, and Mrs. George Cassis, librarian, read the National Defense message.

Mrs. Philip R. Davenport, chairman of the nominating committee, and committee members Mrs. Willems, Mrs. Erhard, Mrs. Cassis and Mrs. Sidney Ruskin presented the following slate of officers for the 1989-92 term, and they were unanimously elected: Regent, Mrs. William J. Gemmel; vice regent, Mrs. James B. Brumfield; and chaplain, Mrs. Hazel Erhard.

Also elected were recording secretary, Mrs. R. L. Morton; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Catherine McCarter Shedd; treasurer, Mrs. Sidney Ruskin; registrar, Mrs. George Cassis; historian, Mrs. James R. Thomas; and librarian, Mrs. Tim Alford Quinn.

New officers will be installed at the May meeting and they will take office in September.

Mrs. Willems announced that the 83rd State Conference of Mississippi DAR will be Feb. 16-18 at the Ramada-Coliseum in Jackson. Delegates from Friendship Oak Chapter are Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Davenport, Mrs. Ruskin, Mrs. Morton and Mrs. Archie D. Graham.

This chapter will be in charge of registration for the convention and Mrs. Willems, Mrs. Cassis and several other members will attend to assist with this large organizational task.

Good Citizens Committee chairman Mrs. Erhard reported that a student from Long Beach High School and another from Pass Christian High School will be chosen to represent their schools at the State Convention. The top three good citizen students in the state will be selected at that convention.

Mrs. Thomas, outgoing regent, will be the chapter delegate to the National DAR Convention in Washington, D.C. to be held Apr. 17-21.

The next meeting will be on Saturday, Feb. 11, when Mrs. Clyde Woodfield of Gulf Coast Chapter will be an interesting guest speaker on a patriotic theme.

Coast Audubon Society

Pete Dunne, well-known birdwatching expert and nature writer is scheduled to speak at the J. L. Scott Marine Education Center in Biloxi on Jan. 16 at 7:30 p.m. The program, which will touch on the lighter side of birdwatching is sponsored by the Mississippi Coast Audubon Society.

Dunne is the former director of the Cape May Bird Observatory in Cape May, N.J. He presently divides his time between editing the New Jersey Audubon Magazine and writing for the New York Times and other natural science publications.

In recent years, Dunne has become known to birdwatchers nationwide through his prolific writings. His birding exploits and essays have appeared in magazines such as Living Bird Quarterly, New Jersey Audubon, Birding, Birder's World, and Birdwatching Digest.

Local birding enthusiasts will be familiar with Dunne's two most recent books, 'Tales of a Low-Rent Birder' (Rutgers University Press) and 'Hawks in Flight' (Houghton Mifflin). He is currently preparing another book of birding adventures, in which coastal Mississippi will be featured.

Monday evening's program promises to be anything but dull, as Dunne is an engaging and witty speaker. The public is invited to attend, free of charge.

Black legislators plan information conference

In an effort to explain changes in Mississippi law and promote further economic development, the 22 members of the Mississippi Legislative Black Caucus will sponsor the first ever State Government Awareness and Information Conference Monday, Jan. 30. This historical event is set for 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Universities Center and is a part of a day-long agenda which will culminate with a semi-formal banquet.

The conference, sponsored by the Caucus' Political Education and Development Foundation in conjunction with top state government officials, will provide insight and information on issues of major concern to Mississippi.

Some of the issues to be discussed are state purchasing laws, the new department of economic development, public lands management, financial statement analysis, education/business/industry partnerships and economic development for the future.

Later that evening, 7:30 p.m. at the Mississippi Trade Mart Building in Jackson, the Mississippi Legislative Black Caucus will host its third annual banquet.

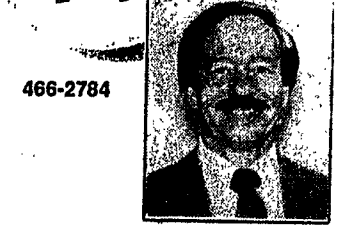

Caucus leaders will further stress their commitment to Mississippi citizens through their theme, 'A New Mississippi: Strive for a Brighter Future.' The goal of this fundraising event is to help establish a forum for top level business, professional, and political leaders to discuss and exchange ideas that will make Mississippi a major state with which to compete. The featured keynote speaker is California's first black female state senator, Diane E. Watson. Senator Watson, chairperson of the California Legislative Black Caucus, is a leading advocate of reform in California. Major policies she helped establish include some of the same issues of concern in Mississippi today, such as strategies for economic development, health care and education.

Grow your own fern almost from scratch

By Dr. Milo Burnham Horticulturist

Are you by chance a pteridologist? Probably not since specialists in the study of ferns aren't as commonly found in the general population as lawyers and doctors. However, a lover of ferns you may be.

There's something intriguing about ferns that attracts us to them. It may be their appearance or the way they grow but one thing for sure, it isn't their colorful flowers since they don't have any.

There are many different types of ferns with vastly different plant forms. For example, it's hard to believe that the Boston fern and the Staghorn fern are related; they don't look anything alike.

Most gardeners separate ferns into two broad groups: those that are hardy and live in the woods and the yard and those that are tender tropicals, grown indoors during the cold weather.

Ferns are rather primitive plants along the developmental lines that led to our trees and flowering plants. Ferns do not form seeds, and what may be surprising to many is that their reproductive cycle involves swimming male cells as does that of the true mosses and the maiden-hair tree (Ginkgo).

My dislike of the Boston fern as a houseplant is no secret. But, there are people who grow it successfully indoors along with some other types of ferns such as the Japanese fiddle fern, Staghorn fern, Bird's-nest fern and Rabbit's-foot fern.

When selecting ferns to grow indoors, those having glossy leaves of a harder texture adapt better to the usual dry atmosphere of our homes. Beginners should skip over the delicate ferns originating in tropical rain forests and areas of high humidity. As appealing as the maidenhair ferns are, they are not for the typical home environment.

Ferns can be purchased at nurseries, garden centers and from mail-order catalogs. Some can even be collected from the wild, but be sure you have the property owner's permission. Another way to obtain ferns is from friends who have them, since many ferns can be easily divided. The true lover of ferns, however, may want to challenge of starting new ferns from the reproductive spores.

Ferns are primitive plants and lack flowers and seeds as we know them, but they do reproduce from spores.

On some ferns the spore-producing structures appear as regularly spaced dots on the backs of the fronds while others have irregularly spaced dots or just irregular shaped patches. Each cluster of spore-producing structures is called a sorus. Some fern owners misinterpret these spore-bearing structures as scale like insects or as symptoms of disease.

During the summer months the spores mature and are released into the atmosphere by the millions. To collect spores, the whole fern frond or a part of it can be collected, placed in an envelope and allowed to dry. As the fern dries, the dust-like spores are released.

High humidity and a suitable substrate are necessary for the spores to germinate. Place a moist, expanded peat pellet (dry pellets for growing transplants are available at most nurseries, garden centers and co-ops) in a saucer.

Sprinkle the spores from the envelope onto the peat pellet and cover the pellet with a clear plastic drink cup. Keep water standing in the saucer and keep the pellet at room temperature. Indirect light or fluorescent light for up to 20 hours a day is also required.

Spore germination requires a few days to several weeks depending on the type of fern. The spores don't germinate into little fern plants, but into flat algae-like heart-shaped structures that bear the male and female organs on their undersurfaces.

At this stage high humidity and free water are necessary to permit movement of the male cells, so mist the pellets and replace the plastic cup cover. After fertilization of the egg by the sperm on the underside of the heart-shaped structure, the new fern plant begins to grow. It may require six months or more for the young plant to reach a size large enough for transplanting to a small flower pot.

This seems like a long, hard process to obtain a new fern plant, but it presents a challenge and gives an appreciation for the millions of spores produced by each plant. If each spore landed in a favorable environment, we'd be covered up with ferns, but it's only the rare spore that is fortunate enough to land in an environment favorable enough to result in a new fern plant. Good luck!

Thursday's testimony in Joseph's trial

BY DENA BISNETTE

Thursday's testimony placed the defendant himself, his adopted daughter and the man charged with accessory to murder on the stand. Nine other people also testified, with most of their comments centered on two areas: Joseph's concern for his daughter Wendy Joseph and the poor condition of the Toronado involved in his wife's death.

Joseph broke down on the stand more than once during his testimony, which lasted more than three hours, and court had to be recessed at one point until he could continue.

Joseph testified that his wife had left him on Nov. 23, 1987, shortly after they celebrated their fifth anniversary, which was Nov. 7. Introduced into evidence was a diamond ring he had purchased for Mrs. Joseph, which she had returned to her estranged husband through her mother-in-law.

Joseph also testified that he had adopted Wendy when she was 12 years old.

He was working as a labor arbitrator at the time of his wife's death and was traveling extensively during the week and coming home on weekends.

Shortly before his wife left him, he had planned to give his daughter the Toronado. She was driving it, he said, but the vehicle had a number of problems. Joseph himself was driving a company car.

After Mrs. Joseph went to work for Rocketdyne, she was away from home from about 2:30 p.m. until midnight and Wendy was home alone. Two neighbors later backed up these comments when they testified that Joseph often called them during the week to ask them to check on the teenager.

Joseph stated that his concern for his daughter stemmed from several reasons.

"We had just gone through the Crystal King murder," said Joseph, breaking into tears. "She was Wendy's friend and very close to our family." Judge Vlahos called a brief recess to allow the defendant to compose himself.

Another cause for concern was her boyfriend, Shawn Pavolini, a Florida resident boarding at St. Stanislaus. Joseph said Pavolini drove a DeLorean.

The defendant explained that he also did not care for a group of youths who, along with his daughter, liked to hang around the Edgewater Mall.

One day when he went into her room, he found several photographs of Wendy and some of those friends showing them wearing punk rock clothing. A question from Grissom to Wendy later in the trial revealed that one of them depicted her with another person holding a knife to her throat.

He said he was upset at his discovery and talked to her mother about Wendy's activities, but did not discuss the pictures with her or the teenager.

"I didn't mention them. I didn't know how to take those photographs. I was completely shocked," Joseph told Rose.

Throughout his testimony, the defendant contended that the two private detectives he had hired to watch his wife's apartment the day she died had actually been hired to check on Wendy. He also explained that the car tag numbers he had given to them were the tags of cars which had charged gasoline on an account he had established for Diana and Wendy Joseph at Scafid's Chevron.

He said he had arranged to pick up the credit slips for the gasoline when he was home on weekends and had spotted a tag number he did not recognize.

He continually contended that the reason he wanted to visit his estranged wife that day was to discuss Wendy and a two-week trip to Florida that she was planning with Pavolini, explaining that he did not feel it was appropriate for a 15-year-old girl to travel out-of-state with a boyfriend unless an adult went along.

After Grissom objected, stating he felt the defense was trying to discredit Mrs. Joseph as a parent, Joseph stated that he only knew the teenagers were going to Florida and did not learn until later that they would stay with Pavolini's parents.

Because their divorce was being based on irreconcilable differences, there was a 60-day waiting period and it would not be final until Feb. 19, but Joseph said that he had already agreed to let Wendy live with her mother.

He knew where the two were living on DeMontluzin Street and had been there or phoned several times before to talk about the girl.

In recounting the day of his wife's death, Joseph explained that he was driving the Toronado that day because the day before he had dropped his company car off for repair to damage from an accident in Gulfport.

His description of the Toronado stated that the vehicle repeatedly stalled out, leaving the driver without any control over the power brakes, and that sometimes the power steering locked up, refusing to respond.

He described having the car worked on repeatedly, mostly at Scafid's. It had been recently damaged and worked on after his son, home on military leave, had borrowed it in late July or early August and had been involved in a wreck in New Orleans.

Joseph's testimony matched that of an earlier witness who had described having to "stand on the brake" when borrowing the vehicle or driving it on trips with Joseph, and of later witnesses who said the Toronado had remained parked for several weeks prior to Mrs. Joseph's death and had apparently not been driven at all since she and Wendy had left home.

Joseph said he and a friend, Roy Dyess, who was separated from his wife and was living with him, hooked a borrowed battery charger to the Toronado the evening of Dec. 21.

Joseph said it was after 2 p.m. the next day when he left home to keep several appointments, among them one at Scafid's to have more work done on the car because he planned to give it to Wendy on or about Dec. 25.

He had called the private investigator, Jim Mallini, that morning.

"There was very little communication about Wendy and her relationship with Shawn, her relationship with the people at the mall," Joseph stated, explaining that he felt he could not look into the matter himself due to his constant traveling.

He said that after leaving his home in Pass Christian, he left the Toronado running during a brief stop at the post office, then used the drive-in window at the bank because he was afraid the vehicle would not crank again.

Joseph said the teller was Shelly Wells, a friend who had dropped by for lunch with him and Dyess earlier that day.

The defendant had planned to take the car to Scafid's Chevron to have it repaired, explaining that he also had an appointment to have his hair done and that it was customary for one of the service station employees to give him a ride to his hairdresser's, then pick him up when the repairs were done.

As he approached the red light at the Bay bridge, the defendant said he changed his mind and headed for his wife's apartment.

"This had been on my mind and I decided to go on to the apartments and talk to Diana concerning Wendy's trip and her activities. I didn't understand a lot," Joseph told the jury.

He said he was not "getting it," as an earlier witness had testified, when he turned into DeMontluzin Street. He saw Mallini and the other detective, Paul Barkmeier, sitting in a parked car viewing the drive-way to the apartments.

He pulled in to the parking lot where they were, across the street from the driveway, and turned his car off.

Joseph said he immediately thought, "oh, no, it's not going to crank" and turned the car back on, revving the engine. It died again but started on a second try.

Mallini came over and sat in the car with him, and they discussed Wendy and Joseph's intention to talk with his wife.

"He finally said, 'Yeah, I guess so, if you think it will do any good,'" the defendant stated, adding that Mallini went back to his car because who stated that Joseph's Toronado had stalled while they were driving it, creating a situation where its brakes failed and it became difficult to steer, the prosecution called Beverly Donnette Lee to the stand.

Lee, employed with the district attorney's office, stated that she is only five feet, one inch tall and 107 pounds, but when she killed the engine while driving the Toronado Thursday, she experienced little difficulty braking and steering.

"The steering was somewhat stiff, but not beyond my power to control," she said.

In his closing statement, Assistant District Attorney Darrell Roberts recapped the points in the events, surrounding the collision, that seemed to indicate Joseph's guilt.

In his final argument, Rose said, "In this case the state has attempted to prove murder but I feel they have failed to do that. They have presented no evidence to prove he intended to kill his wife."

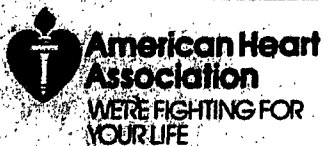

"He was down the road hiding between two trees. How could he have known that she was going to drive by and was waiting to kill her," Rose said.

Joseph had parked down DeMontluzin Street from his estranged wife's apartment to talk to two private investigators he had hired earlier that day.

Joseph had testified that he hired the investigators to watch Wendy, Diana's 17-year-old daughter whom he had adopted five years earlier, about whom he was concerned. James Mallini, one of the investigators, however, stated that he had been hired to determine if Diana Joseph had a boy friend.

"They conclude that he tried to kill her because there were no skid marks, but they could have easily concluded that there were no marks because the brakes failed," Rose said.

"If there is a person on the face of this Earth who knows if Mel Joseph is a murderer, it is Wendy Joseph. And she is with her daddy, who adopted her when she was 11 years old," Rose said.

"I can understand Wendy wanting to help her father, she is living with him," Assistant D.A. Harold Grissom said in his rebuttal.

"I'm extremely happy for Mel and his family. I'm relieved that this burden is off them. We knew from the beginning they didn't have a case. It was an accident and I have seen him suffer as much as I have seen any man suffer. I'm glad that it's over," Rose said after the verdict.

they saw Diana Joseph coming out of the driveway.

Joseph said he never saw his wife look at him, but he saw her slow down to look at Mallini and Barkmeier, then go down to Beach, turn and slow down to look at them again, continuing on toward Second Street.

Joseph said he decided to catch up to her and stop her to talk, and spun out on some shells as he left the parking lot.

He denied having seen his wife make the obscene gesture referred to during the trial as "giving the finger" or "flipping the bird," but stated that he would "never, ever be offended" by that particular behavior from her because she had a habit of doing it "all the time, when she was joking around" and even identified a photograph of her doing so.

He said he nearly hit, or was hit by, a vehicle that suddenly pulled out into the street as he passed. She had slowed her car somewhat when he started to catch up to her.

"I never saw her brake lights," the defendant said.

"I was on top of her," he said, crying again. "I went for the brakes, but there were no brakes."

He said he then tried to veer left but the steering did not respond.

He did not see her car hit the pole, nor the damage to her car. He told the jury he looked back and "she was mouthing to me, she was talking to me."

Asked why he never got out of the car, he said, "I've thought about that a million times. I thought she was all right...I never once thought my wife was hurt."

He continued driving and wound up at the Chevron, he said, where he told David Scafidi he had been in an accident with his wife and wanted a ride home.

Joseph related how Scafidi had taken him to the scene, but then told him to stay in the truck because he was injured. He said Scafidi went to see Mrs. Joseph and returned, telling him she was all right and would be taken to the hospital for observation.

He explained that Scafidi had offered to take him to the hospital but he refused, and when they passed the bank he asked him to stop there. Joseph explained to the jury that the diamond ring his wife had returned was in a safe deposit box there, and fearing that she would be angry about the wreck, he wanted to take it to her that evening.

He said Dyess seemed very concerned about Joseph having left the scene of the accident, so the defendant got another vehicle and went to the Bay St. Louis Police Station, where he learned that he was being sought for aggravated assault against his wife and that she was undergoing emergency surgery.

Joseph said Detective Tom Burleson told him he had an arrest warrant, but he was more concerned that the police officers were "evasive" about his injured wife's condition.

When he got to the hospital, Joseph said he "expected to see Diana there, ready to chew me out."

He said that at the hospital he saw Police Chief Ray Murphy, whom he had never met but had telephoned the previous year regarding a former Bay police officer he was representing.

Joseph said he was taken to an examining room to be treated for the injuries he had sustained in the wreck and shortly thereafter Murphy and an attorney, Henry Cook III, came in.

"I kept asking about Diana and they kept telling me she was being operated on," he said. He stated that when they finally told him his wife had died he just "kind of collapsed," but he did understand that the aggravated assault charge was being upgraded to murder.

During testimony he repeatedly stated that the wreck was an accident, not intentional.

Joseph said he did not see his daughter, but did see Dyess' estranged wife, who took care of the girl for several days after that. Then he was taken to jail.

"Never, never did I intend for our cars to collide in any way, never," Joseph said.

After a break for lunch, Grissom cross-examined the defendant, who denied having called his wife obscene names except in jest, that she had ever indicated fear of him or a desire to have him stay away from her and that Wendy feared him.

He did state that he did not know the particular circumstances under which the pictures being used to show that "Wendy was wild" were taken and that he did not know enough about cars to understand just what was wrong with the Toronado.

He also told Grissom that he "didn't really think they'd be there" when he saw the detectives near his wife's apartment.

Joseph stated that he first realized he had hit his wife's car "when I looked back in the rear-view mirror" but that he had known he would have to turn or take other evasive action to avoid hitting her vehicle as his car had gained on hers.

"I just knew I had to hit the brakes...I had to make that turn," Joseph said.

DAUGHTER TESTIFIES

Wendy Joseph, 17, remained composed on the witness stand as she told about her relationship with her adoptive father and her anger after the accident while she refuted most of what she had said in her initial statement to the police.

She also described the problems with the Toronado, stating that they included "the brakes, the gas pedal fell off once, the engine was changed out once or twice, overheating and stalling out a lot."

She said her father telephoned to check on her often when she was home alone after her mother went to work at Rocketdyne and had a lot of questions about Pavolini, but "at the time, he let it slide."

"He was always very concerned about who I hung around with and he often asked people who came to the house who they were and how old they were, especially."

She said she sometimes dressed punk but "I don't have the bad attitude associated with it" and that she did it for fun. "It was like dress-up," the teenager stated.

She said her father did not know about it and she did not know he had found the photographs, which were taken when she and some friends "were playing around" with a camera.

She admitted that anyone seeing the pictures would get "a very bad impression" but said neither parent discussed them with her.

She had seen Joseph only once between the time she and her mother left him and the day Mrs. Joseph died.

She did not talk with him about the trip on that occasion. "I didn't really think about it, I left it up to my mom. She usually made all the decisions about such matters."

Wendy Joseph also explained that neither she nor her mother were afraid of Joseph and "My mom was afraid of no one."

She said she was "angry" at her father after her mother's death and "never wanted to see him again." She stayed with Mrs. Dyess for a time, then moved in with Pavolini's family in Florida until May 1988, when she returned to live with her father.

She stated that she had dealt with her anger.

The teenager described the last day of her mother's life and how that anger originated.

She told the jury they had come home from shopping and were notified by their apartment manager that she had sent away two men who had been watching their residence.

She said her mother told her, "I think it's your father but it's nothing to worry about" because she knew he wouldn't harm me or her."

Her mother went to work and Wendy went to take a nap, then was awakened by three of her friends who had come to tell her about the accident. They gave her a ride to the hospital.

She said she got really angry when they explained that her father had been involved.

She saw Scafidi there, who had her mother's purse and gave it to her, but did not tell her how he got it.

The teenager testified that she started to scream when a doctor told her that her mother had too many internal injuries, but that they had tried to save her anyway.

She went home with Betty Dyess and did not see her father until "the next day or maybe Christmas."

She said Murphy had told her they needed a statement as soon as possible, and when she went to give it to him, he told her, "Your father has murdered your mother and we're going to get him. We're going to get his friend David too. He helped him."

Wendy Joseph said she had brought the purse as she had been asked to do, and that Murphy remarked that it looked as if someone had gone through, and that a key from her mother's keyring was missing. He kept the keyring and an address book.

"I was in total shock without even realizing it," Wendy Joseph said. "I was angry after Murphy told me this."

She said she had, in her statement, "amplified" the differences between her parents and had accused her father of calling her mother obscene names.

However, she did not let her anger affect her when Murphy asked her if Joseph had ever assaulted her sexually.

"I told him he had never, ever touched me that way... I told Murphy he had always been a father to me," the witness stated.

She added that when she returned from Florida she had decided to "hear the other side of the story" and denied that she had returned because Joseph began sending her expensive gifts.

"My father doesn't have to buy my love," Wendy Joseph said.

She said Murphy had never mentioned the Toronado to her except to tell her that the brakes looked as if the line had been cut and that he had found a tool in the glove box. Under Grissom's questioning, she said she had complained about the car more than once, and related several incidents where the brakes failed and the steering locked after the car stalled out.

Rose asked her about an obscene telephone call her father had allegedly left on Diana Joseph's answering machine, accusing her of "whoring around" and telling her to "enjoy it." Like her mother's obscene gesture, it was not taken in the typical fashion, the witness said.

"My mom took it in a different way. It kind of fit," she said, adding that her mother had told her that the real reason Joseph called was his concern about his daughter's welfare.

ALSO ACCUSED
Scafidi, who has also been accused in the crime and is charged with being an accessory to it, was also a principle defense witness Thursday.

He told the court he has known Joseph and his family for several years because they had become steady customers at the Chevron station, particularly with regard to repairs for the green Toronado.

Scafidi said he had been in his truck, ready to leave the station for a break, when he saw Joseph pull up in the Toronado, which had obviously been wrecked and had steam pouring out of the front. He delayed leaving because he believed Joseph would be leaving the car and would want a ride somewhere.

Scafidi said they were inside the truck before Joseph told him the accident had involved his estranged wife.

The witness testified that Joseph asked to be taken home, but he suggested they check on Mrs. Joseph after hearing an ambulance siren.

He described the defendant as having been pale and disoriented and losing his balance whenever the truck turned a corner. Scafidi said he believed the man was injured so he told Joseph to stay in the truck when they got to the scene.

Diana Joseph had been lifted out of the car and was being prepared for transport in the ambulance. Scafidi said he went to her and took her hand, asking her if she was all right.

"She was saying things like 'my side hurts, my back hurts', and then her eyes kind of got wide and the medical people told me she was in shock then," he explained.

He said he was told she would be taken to the hospital for observation.

A woman at the scene spotted Mrs. Joseph's purse, jacket and keys on the ground and asked about it after she was taken away, and someone said "Give it to David. He knows the family," but he did not know who said it.

A policeman questioned him about the purse, but another one told him it was okay, let Scafidi take it.

Scafidi stated that he was asked if he wanted to ride in the ambulance with her, but he decided to go to the hospital with the purse after taking Joseph home. He said he knew the way because his brother lived next door to Joseph, but missed a turn. That brought his vehicle in front of the bank, where Joseph asked him to stop.

After leaving Joseph with Roy Dyess, he returned to the station to tell his employees where he was going, then went to the hospital. Under questioning from Rose, he said he hadn't touched the purse, but when Grissom asked him about it, he admitted having gone through it to help supply the hospital personnel with information about the injured woman.

He said he then gave the purse to Wendy.

"I was in shock myself," he said, describing how he felt when he was told Mrs. Joseph had died. "I had thought she was going to be okay."

Scafidi said he stayed around a few minutes to see that Wendy would be all right, then left. Later he went to the police station to give a statement. He told Rose at the time he felt he had done nothing wrong in helping Joseph.

His first indication that something was wrong was when he went to give the statement and "they started reading me my Miranda rights. I asked if I was being arrested and they said 'we don't know yet.'"

He said when he was called to appear before the Grand Jury, although he ultimately did not have to testify, he was waiting and a man he later learned was Grissom came up, without identifying himself and said to him, "I know Mel Joseph killed his wife and if you don't hand him over, you'll go the penitentiary."

He said the assistant district attorney then told him that Joseph had said that he had told Scafidi about his plans to kill the woman. He said Grissom told him to tell him what they wanted to know.

"I couldn't tell them anything like that; I couldn't live with myself," the witness said.

He admitted telling Murphy conflicting stories and said he had done so "because I was scared." Like Wendy Joseph, he refuted parts of his own statement and added some testimony, such as the part about the stop at the bank, which he said he had not recalled at the time due to his panic at being arrested.

He said he recalled Joseph saying he had seen his wife standing beside the car after the wreck and that when a doctor on the scene said that she would be taken to the hospital for observation, it added to his mistaken belief she had not been seriously injured.

He also said he didn't know Mallini had already been there and identified Mrs. Joseph and explained that he had accepted the responsibility of the purse because he thought he was the only one at the scene who knew her.

Scafidi also said he knew that, because he is also charged, he did not have to testify but did so voluntarily.

Moonshine still raided in Catahoula Community

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Two Hancock County residents were arrested and charged with possession of an illicit distillery and possession of non-tax-paid whiskey last week.

Federal, state and county officers arrested Murthor Anthony Ladner, 50, of Fenton and Kelly B. Necaise, 38, of Dummyline Road in the raid, Hancock County sheriff Ronald Peterson said.

The still operating in the Catahoula Community was described as being one of the largest moonshine stills to have been destroyed in Mississippi in more than a year.

Ladner also faces charges of transporting non-tax-paid whiskey.

Ladner was released under a $2,000 bond and Necaise was released under a $1,000 bond.

Peterson stated, if the state prosecutes, the charges will be misdemeanors, but if federal officials bring charges, they will be felony charges.

"I spoke with federal officials yesterday and they are still investigating the bust and haven't decided as yet as to whether they will make charges," Peterson said Saturday morning.

The still was found in a barn behind Necaise's Catahoula residence.

Officers destroyed a 300-gallon cooker, 18 fermenting barrels, 990 gallons of whiskey mash, two water pumps, 500 plastic jugs and 30 gallons of moonshine whiskey.

Peterson said a 1981 Oldsmobile station wagon was seized and is being held by his department pending the outcome of court proceedings.

Nathan Hoda, Hancock County criminal investigator and Deputy Bobby Ray Necaise assisted agents of the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in the raid.

"Moonshining is not profitable like is used to be and penalties are now stiffer, so there aren't too many people making whiskey anymore. It has been several years since a still has been destroyed in Hancock County," Peterson said.

Gulf Coast Roundup planned by Alcoholics Anonymous

Mississippi members of Alcoholics Anonymous are hosting their eighth annual Gulf Coast Roundup Friday through Sunday, Jan. 20-23 in Biloxi.

Some 1,000 members of AA, Alanon and Alateen are expected to participate in the three-day event at the Royal d'Berville Hotel.

AA is reputed to include among its members some of the finest after-dinner and convention speakers in the country. This year's Biloxi event will include speakers from Mississiippi, Louisiana, Texas, North Carolina and Windsor, Ontario, Canada.

The roundup opens at noon Friday with registration at the hotel, includes a Mississippi Area Assembly quarterly meeting Saturday afternoon, banquet and dance Saturday evening, and concludes with an inspirational session Sunday morning.

Additional information may be obtained by writing the Roundup Chairman, P.O. Box 1502, Gulfport, MS 39502.

Former employees affected by Trade Act Petition

Linda Ross Aldy, executive director of the Mississippi Employment Security Commission, has announced the approval of Trade Act Petitions for Dowell Schlumberger Inc., Teledyne Exploration Company, Tuboscope Inc., Hydrocarb Well Logging Inc., Western Company of North America, and Placid Oil Company. All organizations operate within the state of Mississippi.

Trade Act Petitions provide for extended compensation to workers who are either unemployed or underemployed because of cut-backs in the labor force due to increased foreign imports. This petition was certified on Nov. 25, 1988, and includes all workers who were either permanently or temporarily laid off, or whose hours were reduced on or after Oct. 1, 1985 and before Oct. 1, 1987.

Persons who have worked for these companies may be eligible for services such as: job placement, reemployment services and additional unemployment benefits. Anyone seeking assistance with any of the above programs should contact their local office of the Mississippi

Employment Security Commission.

Discovery May End Obesity

National Dietary Research, an organization committed to the research and development of nutritional solutions to world-wide health problems reported in a Washington, D.C. press release, "Obesity may be controlled naturally with a new type of pill, discovered by accident. In studies with potential cholesterol-lowering agents, scientists noted an unusual side effect. Patients receiving an ingredient in what is now being called FS-1 all lost weight, in spite of being instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, while body weight in control groups remained constant." Scientists say the mechanism behind the weight reduction is due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calorie-rich dietary fats and substances with a greater potential to block absorption will produce greater weight loss results.

In a comparative study by NDR, whose research topics have been the subject of articles published in recent medical and nutritional journals, FS-1 was found to be the most effective treatment for obesity and the most acceptable to patients. Because FS-1 contains only natural ingredients recognized as safe, it is available to the public immediately on a limited basis through physicians and pharmacies for $24.98 per 100 tablets.

Anderson art museum to become reality for Ocean Springs

A campaign aimed at raising near $1 million to finance an art museum in honor of prominent American painter Walter Anderson has officially begun in the artist's hometown of Ocean Springs.

Businessman and former Biloxi mayor Jerry O'Keefe is general chairman. Mrs. Ray Mabius, wife of Mississippi's governor, and Mrs. Walter (Sissy) Anderson, the artist's widow, are honorary chairwomen.

Mrs. Courtney Blossman of Ocean Springs is president of the Friends of Walter Anderson Inc. Chartered in 1974 and numbering 1,400 members, the non-profit organization is dedicated to preserving and exhibiting the artist's works.

Just prior to the official start of the campaign effort, the city of Ocean Springs and its neighbor Biloxi each pledged $25,000. These contributions, added to earlier patron donations, pushed the campaign goal marker past the one-quarter milestone.

With the guidance of fund raising counsel Woodburn and Associates of Madison, Inc., remaining financial support will be sought from patrons residing throughout the state of Mississippi and southern areas of Louisiana and Alabama.

A major thrust of the capital campaign begins this week focusing on Pascagoula, Moss Point, Ocean Springs, Gulfport, Hattiesburg, New Orleans, Jackson, Pass Christian, Bay St. Louis, Mobile, and Laurel. Construction of the museum will be the fulfillment of a long-time goal to share Anderson's life and work with not only his community but the world. A 1988 feasibility study showed the need for an art museum on the Gulf Coast and verified that the financial goal was achievable.

The Jackson County Board of Supervisors has granted an irrevocable 99-year lease for the building site located on Washington Avenue in the heart of the city's historic downtown.

Since the adjacent community center houses a major Anderson mural appraised at $1 million, an agreement was reached with the City of Ocean Springs to integrate that building into the overall plan.

"We feel that to have the bulk of a man's creative output in the spot where he worked presents an unprecedented opportunity for scholars," said Mrs. Anderson. "We want the museum to be a place where others may exercise their right of expression and have a place to display their works."

Mrs. Blossman pointed out there are few American museums honoring a single artist. Since the artist's death in 1965, his works, embracing a wide variety of media (sculpture, printing, ceramics, furniture design, textiles, water colors, ink drawings, and writings), have increasingly drawn national and international attention and acclaim.

While Anderson's art will be the heart of the museum, a gallery will be provided for visiting exhibits. A second focus will be on education: visits by elementary, high school and college classes, small group lectures and films, and special classes in art and art history. Opportunities for community participation will include service as docents and aides.

Mrs. Blossman said the museum's focus upon a native artist who is rapidly becoming recognized as an American master will encourage many painters, students and scholars of varying disciplines to come to Ocean Springs for study and research.

A 1988 economic study estimated the museum would have a significant effect on tourism by attracting an additional 3,500 visitors a year to the city. Shearwater Pottery, owned and operated by the Peter Anderson Family, already has 6,500 visitors yearly.

WHAT IS A TOWN?

A town is a group of people.

It is schools
It is city government
It is churches
It is industry and jobs
It is retail businesses

They all have to work together. All must have the support of the people. Or there is no town.

Give your local merchant a chance for your business. You shouldn't spend your hard earned money with him unless his selection is adequate and his price competitive. But give him the first opportunity to make the sale.

For your local retailer pays the highest percentage of local taxes. He most often is the civic leader who dedicates his time and talent to his community. He is contacted first for contributions to charitable projects. He provides jobs.

Without his store you have no town.

Reflections

Our Greatest Present

By Father Jerome LeDoux

We are always eager to receive a present, whether we need one or not. Yet, unless we are grossly materialistic, it is not the present itself, but the thought, the attention, the affection and the person of the giver which attracts us.

That leads us immediately to the inescapable conclusion that our ultimate, most personal interest is not what someone wants to give us, but the person of the giver himself/himself.

Presents come and go, but the one present which we all desire, and which is the hardest in coming, is the giver herself/himself. It is the hardest in coming because most people quickly give things, but are so very slow to give their very selves.

We know well what the problem is here. It is relatively easy to part with something which does not take a piece of our very self. Giving a part of ourselves is another matter. For one thing, we feel quite insecure about putting our self out for the taking.

Will I get hurt—again—if I let it be known that I love enough to surrender my autonomy and to let down my defenses?

Giving ourselves to anyone generates a feeling of vulnerability, a feeling of anxiety and raw fear deep inside us. Will I be the proverbial sucker, led on by the nose until it is too late to save my self-respect, my self-esteem and perhaps my very life?

Fortunately, we have the greatest prototype which we could ever imagine for giving present, for giving oneself. Without this prototype, we would be hard put just to appreciate the wisdom of giving ourselves to others as the greatest gift we have.

With this prototype, giving becomes the thing to do, the very core of living, the thing without which life loses all meaning.

Jesus is the live model of the ultimate in serving, in giving oneself totally for the well-being and benefit of others—without holding back because of selfishness, doubt and the fear of being hurt.

"The Son of Man...came, not to be served by others, but to serve, to give his own life as a ransom for the many." (Matthew 20:28)

We yearn to think in that way, to have that same attitude in our dealings with each other, but we talk a much better generosity than we live in fact. Spouses especially talk that wonderful language of total giving, total serving of one another's needs but the dismal statistics of marriage tell a different tale.

Too many people, perhaps unbeknown to themselves, try to buy friends by showering individuals with gifts of every description. Of course, all too many people will oblige them, gladly accepting the gifts without making any real commitment of friendship.

Again, the irony, the tragedy is that genuine friends want us, not anything material which we have to offer them. Real friendship is built around persons, not around what persons have.

"What a friend we have in Jesus!" says it all. If we will take it, he gave us the cue which shows us exactly how to give our whole self, and thus how to live life to the full.

Jesus is our Present with a future. With him there is no past except to learn by, and actually no future except as the grand fulfillment of all our present wonders of life.

Since he is the Alpha and the Omega, he is today, he is now, he is our greatest Present. As the World of God, "he was present to God in the beginning." (John 1:2)

As the Son of Man, he was called "Emmanuel," a name which means "God is with us." (Matthew 1:23)

Jesus, our greatest Present, shows us that the best present we can give is to make ourselves presentable and always to others.

The bride is the daughter of M. Alice Klima of Waveland and Thear Lemoine of Brentwood, Tenn. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Butler Sr.

of Baton Rouge.

Aisle candelabra were adorned with garlands and bows. Poinsettias and wreaths decorated the sanctuary.

Nuptial music was presented by Ronnie Brothers of Baton Rouge.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of iridescent taffeta featuring scalloped sabrina neckline and long tapered sleeves adorned with embroidered lace, pearls and sequins. The full pleated skirt extended to cathedral length train accented with etched lace scallops. A pearl crown headpiece belonging to her mother held a three tiered veil of illusion lined with seed pearls.

She carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses and stephanotis with a lace-trimmed handkerchief, a gift of the groom's grandmother.

Wendy Looney of Baton Rouge was maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Cherri Evans, Paula Butler, sister-in-law of the groom; and Barry Searles, sister of the groom, all of Baton Rouge.

Antoinette Klima, sister of the bride, of Waveland, was flower girl.

The attendants were attired in formal gowns each with evergreen velvet bodice and petal effect at the shoulder above long tapered sleeves. The slightly flared skirt was of iridescent emerald taffeta. They carried arm bouquets of red roses and holly.

James Butler served his brother as best man.

Groomsmen were Dennis Mannino of Baton Rouge and Thear Lemoine of Waveland, brother of the bride.

David Bersech of Baton Rouge was usher, and Andy Butler of Baton Rouge, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer.

The bride's mother was attired in a tea length gown of royal blue velvet. The groom's mother chose a champagne-hue gown of silk.

A reception followed the ceremony at Stage One in Baton Rouge.

On return from a wedding trip to the Great Smoky Mountains in Tennessee, the couple resides in Baton Rouge.

Demboski-Rhodes

Miss Cecelia Ann Rhodes became the bride of Drew John Demboski on Saturday, November 26 in Poplar Springs Drive Baptist Church, Meridian.

Parents of the couple are Dr. and Mrs. L. N. Rhodes Jr. of Meridian and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Demboski of Bay St. Louis.

The Rev. James M. Snowden, uncle of the bride, and the Rev. Robert Hartenfeld conducted the 2 p.m. ceremony.

Nuptial music was presented by Peggy Sheppard, pianist; Joyce Tillery, organist; Brian Gum, violinist; Amy Goldman, flutist; and Dr. William Easley, vocalist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory satin gown featuring a fitted bodice of silk lace and pearls. The gown was outlined at the V-waistline with triple rows of tiny seed pearls and accented with a high neckline and long fitted sleeves. The full flowing skirt, adorned with motifs of silk lace, extended into a chapel-length train bordered in fluted crystal pleated ruffles.

For her headpiece, the bride wore an ivory wreath of tiny silk flowers and pearls with double rows of pencil-edged illusion that fell into a fingertip-length veil.

Leslie McRae served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Stephanie Sheppard, Janice Taleff, Mary Phillips and Cynthia Rowell.

Tom Demboski served his brother as best man.

Groomsmen were Scott Demboski, brother of the bridegroom, Roy Willett, Josh Hansell and Andrew Haas.

Ushers were David Rhodes and Larry Rhodes, brothers of the bride.

A reception, hosted by the bride's parents, was held at the church.

After a wedding trip to Aspen, Colo., the couple will reside in Kailua, Hawaii.

Lung Association sponsors anti-smoking poster contest

The 8th annual poster art contest on the 'Health Hazards of Smoking' is being conducted by the Mississippi Lung Association.

The contest is designed to emphasize the value of lung health and to give Mississippi students in grades three through 12 an opportunity to participate in an art education project, said Dr. Boyd Shaw of Jackson, president of the Christmas Seal voluntary health organization.

Teachers will select preliminary winning posters and submit them to the Mississippi Lung Association for statewide judging no later than Monday, March 20. A first place winner will be selected from each grade three through 12 and prizes will be awarded to these students.

Additionally, from the first place winners, two posters will be named the Mississippi Lung Association's Anti-Smoking Posters of the Year. These two students will receive a special award at the 1989 MLA annual meeting in Jackson.

Announcements giving complete details of the contest have been sent to all Mississippi schools. Anyone needing further information may contact the Mississippi Lung Association, P.O. Box 9865, Jackson, MS 39206.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Bay Business Association

The Bay St. Louis Business Association has scheduled a membership drive for their January 19 meeting. Invitations are extended to all businessmen and women in the community. The Meeting Place adjacent to Ruth's Bakery, 130 Court Street, Bay St. Louis will be the setting for the 6 p.m. meeting.

The association is forming a walking/marching group to precede the Krewe of Real People parade on Mardi Gras Day, February 7. Following the parade, a "block party" will be hosted on Beach Boulevard, between Court and Main Streets. Entertainment will be provided by "Speedo and the Rocket 88's".

Two floats are also planned. Activities have been planned on Mardi Gras to provide local residents with a celebration that they do not have to drive to New Orleans or Biloxi to enjoy.

Folk artist Alice Mosely, who had a display at the last Beachfront Festival, has relocated to Bay St. Louis from her home in Pope, Miss.

'A Day in the Bay' was deemed successful by all who participated. Approximately 75 people were on hand for community caroling. Special thanks are extended to the United Methodist Church choir, who strolled the streets, extending Christmas joy to all around.

Residents are reminded of the January 17 election and Historical Society meeting on January 25 at noon at the Landmark Restaurant.

Pass Christian Garden Club

Mrs. Judith Toups, author of Birds and Birding on the Mississippi Gulf Coast, columnist and elective member of the American Birding Association, presented an interesting account and slides on the rare birds that have been seen on the Mississippi Gulf Coast at the Jan. 5 meeting of the Pass Christian Garden Club.

Mrs. Toups noted that these birds come from various parts of the United States. If one would watch closely, some may be seen in your own back yard.

Mrs. Anthony Heibel reminded members of the Pass Christian Garden Club Craft and Flower Show workshop at the Hancock Bank Civic Center Jan. 12, 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 1-3 p.m.

Mrs. Estella Drevar will be the speaker. Members should bring containers, flowers, greenery and needlepoints so that they can be shown how to make an arrangement.

Mrs. Warren Schulz, president, announced that the club was awarded second place for the year book by the Council of Garden Clubs.

The meeting concluded with refreshments served by hostess Mrs. Otis Trepagnier and her co-hostesses.

Next business meeting will be Feb. 2, Hancock Bank Civic Center at 11 a.m.

Personnel Administrators

The next meeting of the Harrison/Hancock Chapter of American Society of Personnel Administrators will be Thursday, Jan. 19 at noon at the Western Sizzlin in Gulfport.

Guest speaker will be Robert (Bob) Smith from Fox-Everett. The topic will be 'Section 89.' Anyone in the personnel profession interested in joining may pick up an application at the meeting.

Hancock Women's Club

The monthly meeting of the Hancock Women's Club was held at the Waveland Library on Thursday, Jan. 12 with 25 members and one guest, Annette Saucier, attending.

The president reported that the $100 donations each to Goodwill and the Salvation Army which were approved at the last meeting had been accomplished. Approved at this meeting was a $100 donation to the Mississippi Special Olympics.

The chairman of the nominating committee, Georgia Williams, presented a slate of officers for the coming year and nominations from the floor were heard.

At the February meeting members will have a further chance to nominate from the floor, after which an election will be held. This meeting, also known as the annual meeting because of the election, will be held on Feb. 9 at the Charbroiler Restaurant, Hwy. 90 in Waveland, and it is important that all members try to attend.

Fun and Games Day will begin at 11 a.m., Wednesday, Jan. 25 at the home of Julia Loup, 620 Central Ave., Waveland. Board members will provide a complimentary luncheon to those attending. The activity will be bingo, with everyone asked to bring wrapped "white elephants" which will serve as prizes.

Arrangements are under way for a ceremony accompanied by planting of a green ash tree on the grounds of the Hancock Medical Center in memory of Roger Harnett who passed away recently, husband of club member Lillian Harnett. A permanent marker will be placed at the site. All club members are requested to attend this ceremony which will be at 10 a.m. Friday, Feb. 10.

The door prize was won by Lorraine Dressel. Goodies in the form of a king cake were provided by Marjorie Thomson. The baby in the cake was "won" by Jeanne Hargett, which gives her the privilege of providing goodies for the next library meeting. The meeting was closed with the reading of an inspiration poem by president Lois Cripple.

Kiln VFW Auxiliary

The Ladies Auxiliary of Post 6285 Kiln, held a covered dish supper and meeting on Tuesday, Dec. 20 at 7:30 p.m.

The regular monthly meeting was opened by the president, Estelle Depreo.

Chaplain Cora Bond read the opening prayer and the roll of officers was called. The Pledge of Allegiance was said by all members. The minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted as read. The treasurer's report was given and bills were presented for payment.

A check in the amount of $25 was given to the National Home, and a dinner for the Veterans of the Gulfport VA Hospital will be on Jan. 20 at the post home, sponsored by the VFW post with the auxiliary as host. The next meeting is Tuesday, Jan. 17.

Take Off Pounds Sensibly

PASS CHRISTIAN

Tops 213 Pass Christian met Jan. 10. Top loser for the week was Linda Garth.

The club invites anyone interested in weight control to visit. The meeting is held every Tuesday at the Pass Christian Library on Hiern Avenue between 6:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Weight-ins are between 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. For more information, please call Gayle Arnold at 467-7198 or Jeannie Livings at 452-9706.

Society of Women Accountants

The American Society of Women Accountants, Mississippi Gulf Coast Chapter No. 110, will be holding their monthly meeting Tuesday, Jan. 17 at the Western Sizzlin on Courthouse Road in Gulfport. Dinner will be at 6 p.m. and the program will begin at 7 p.m.

Larry K. Voas, CLU, CHFC, MSFS, will be presenting the program 'Estate Planning.' This very important topic, which is often neglected, should be of great interest to those planning for the future.

The meeting is open to the public, and all interested are invited to attend. The ASWA was founded in 1938 and serves approximately 7,200 members in more than 130 chapters throughout the United States. The organization encompasses women and men in public accounting, private accounting, finance, internal audit and government. Its major programs focus on advancing the interests of women and men in all fields of accounting.

Adams narrates 'Magic Carpet'

Noted state and television actor Mason Adams has recently completed the narration for 'The Magic Carpet,' a video adaptation of Ellen Douglas and Walter Anderson's book, which is currently in production at Mississippi ETV. The book was published by University Press of Mississippi. The 30-minute children's special features animated puppets, which are based on Anderson's original illustrations of the story. 'The Magic Carpet' is tentatively scheduled to air on the statewide network in the summer of 1989 and will be offered to PBS for national distribution. Adams is best known for his five-year run as Charlie Hume on CBS-TV's 'Lou Grant,' for which he received three Emmy nominations. His most recent New York appearance was in the world premiere of Arthur Miller's 'I Can't Remember Anything' with the Lincoln Center Theatre Company. Adams' film appearances include 'The Final Conflict' and 'F/X.'

Handicapped services told on Governor's toll-free action line

Now, with one phone call, Mississippians with disabilities can obtain the information they need regarding the services that are available to them here in this state.

By dialing 1-800-622-6052, people with disabilities in Mississippi will be able to access the Governor's Office of Handicapped Services new 'Action Line.'

General information will be readily available on a variety of subjects, ranging from the legal rights of the disabled to recent changes in the handicapped parking laws, from accessibility requirements to the latest advancements in rehabilitation engineering.

More specific inquiries may require occasional callbacks, but in every case the caller will receive a response. Additionally, any concern expressed by the caller will be forwarded to the appropriate party for action as needed.

In short, this 11-digit telephone number will provide a one-stop resource for people with disabilities in this state who seek information on services and issues impacting on their everyday lives.

The new toll-free number will also serve as an information clearinghouse for other agencies and organizations serving Mississippians with disabilities as well as a referral source to these groups.

The Action Line is currently operational five days a week, Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information, contact Wanda Kenney, executive director of the Governor's Office of Handicapped Services, Mississippi Department of Rehabilitation Services, P.O. Box 22806, Jackson, MS 39225-2806, or call 354-6100 in Jackson or 1-800-622-6052 statewide (voice or TDD).

OUR CLASSIFIEDS ARE HERE FOR YOU!

And now when you use the coupon below you can save like never before on your classified ads by paying in advance!

HERE'S HOW:

- Write your ad message in the spaces below. Avoid abbreviations, for we cannot be responsible for misinterpreting any important words or phrases. Please use only one word for each space below. Any standard English word is considered to be one (1) word. Any price or phone number you list is also considered to be one word each.
- Include a phone number or address, so potential buyers can reach you.
- Ads are only payable in advance.
- $2.25 minimum for 15 words or less per issue. Over 15 words an additional 15¢ per word.
- Normal classified deadlines apply.
- We reserve the right to reject any ad copy we feel is questionable.
- We must have both your ad and your payment in advance.

Please be sure to use this coupon to take advantage of the special. Include your payment of 15 words per each issue you want your ad to run.

Fitness Tips

Provided by the National Institute for Fitness and Sport and the United States Gymnastics Federation Indianapolis Indiana USA

- Choose an exercise mode suited to your needs: weight training for strength and injury prevention, aerobic training for cardiovascular endurance and fat loss, stretching for flexibility

- You cannot spot reduce. Perform moderate-intensity long-duration exercise for overall fat loss

- When starting an exercise program, pick a specific time of day and stick with it for five weeks to increase chances of adherence

- Stretching a muscle group should be done following a slow version of your activity. Walk, or cycle, or reach to warm the muscles before stretching

- During aerobic work, you should be able to carry on a conversation. If not, you are exercising too hard

- Exercise aerobically for 15 to 30 minutes minimum three to five days per week

- To lose one pound of fat you need to expend 3,500 calories more than you eat. A reasonable fat loss goal is one to two pounds per week

- Drink water throughout exercise. Nothing affects exercise performance more than becoming dehydrated
